Therefore, the Subscriber will be liable for an amount up to the full course fee of £1,599 to cover this loss.

"If the outstanding balance is not paid within fourteen (14) days from the cancellation date, a penalty fee amounting to 20% of the total balance will be added, this fee is charged due to a genuine loss of income caused by the additional time and effort spent on staff following up on late payments. If payment remains outstanding thirty (30) days after the cancellation date, the matter will be referred to the Provider's legal team for recovery through the Small Claims Court. This action will incur additional legal costs, which will be added to the Subscriber's outstanding balance. The Subscriber agrees that any changes occurring from a debt collection company or bailiff will be charged to the Subscriber and will be added to the outstanding balance for recovery.

The Subscriber acknowledges that failure to settle the debt may result in a County Court Judgment (CCJ) being recorded against their name, which could adversely affect their credit rating and ability to obtain future credit from financial institutions.
